Rabbi Jacob Herber

A Message from Rabbi Jacob Herber

I have an admission to make. I've never been a fan of communal seders. I know this might sound surprising given my passion for community building. I've spent the last seven years as a leader of the Rabbinical Assembly engaged in visioning, strategic planning, and community organizing to strengthen and support the community of Conservative rabbis and, by extension, the Conservative Movement. When I visited HNT thirteen months ago as a candidate for the position of Senior Rabbi I chose to teach a text on Shabbat afternoon about how the great Sage, Hillel, in early years, was excluded from a community of learners because I wanted to I articulate my vision of a welcoming and vibrant community. I was so excited about the prospect of serving as HNT's spiritual leader because so many HNT members are either leaders or engaged members of the greater Seattle Jewish community, and because our congregation was a key proponent of a community campus. I just loved the idea of our congregation sharing community space with other communal organizations. I'm a big Clal Yisraelnik, an enormous proponent of a united Jewish community.

So why haven't I been a big fan of communal or community seders? While the synagogue is the primary setting for Jewish religious life, it isn't the exclusive one. The home has always been a very important Jewish setting. Some of the most important rituals of Judaism are located in and are meant to be performed in the home: brit milah (bris), pidyon haben, the redemption of the first-born son, sitting shivah, and many more, including the Passover seder. On Pesach we prepare our homes for the two seders, inviting family and friends to join us at our table. The reason we don't recite Kiddush in the synagogue on erev Passover is because we assume that everyone will recite it at a seder table, either as a host or as a guest in someone's home.

This year, however, like last year, is different. In the midst of a continuing pandemic we have little choice but to limit our Passover sedarim to immediate family. It's the safe and responsible thing to do. There will be many who will have no option but to celebrate at their own seder table, and possibly doing it alone. But this year, like last year, we need each other more than ever, we need our community. So, this year I'll be leading – along with Cantor Kurland - a second night communal seder for our congregational family. It will be abbreviated; shorter than usual. Together, we'll start at the beginning of the Haggadah – reading and singing - and make our way to shulhan orekh, up to the meal. Then we'll wish each other betayavon, a good meal, and conclude our seders on our own. I'm hoping this congregational endeavor will enable us to feel less lonely and apart, and more connected to each other and to HNT. Please look for details in this HaKol about how you can RSVP for our congregational seder and how you can participate by leading a part. I'm looking forward to seeing you on my Zoom screen, Sunday night, March 28th.

Wishing you and your loved ones a very healthy and sweet Passover!

-RABBI JACOB HERBER

Schocken, On The Verge Of Consensus

Film Sponsored by HNT & The Schocken Family

Streaming March 8-11

Before WWII, Salman Schocken was known as the king of department stores in Germany, owning 22 locations and employing 6,000 people. But the businessman and philanthropist was also a man of letters: he owned a unique collection of 60,000 rare books in German and Hebrew, and in 1931 founded a modern publishing house committed to publishing Judaica and Jewish authors such as Franz Kafka, Martin Buber, and Elie Wiesel. A lifelong supporter of the Nobel laureate S.Y. Agnon, a central figure of modern Hebrew fiction, Schocken also bought the Haaretz newspaper and standardized Hebrew font type. Ahead of his time, Schocken was a maverick modernist in love with tradition. His secular humanist worldview embraced the belief that democracy meant cultural access and aesthetics for all. In that vein, the filmmakers and editors have done an incredible job aesthetically, transitioning from black-and-white footage with narration to colorful scenes from the present day, and they use animation to fill up the empty Schocken stores and structures once inhabited by splendid objects and people.

Ten free tickets are available to HNT members, first come first served. Email Rebecca@h-nt.org to claim yours!

“Hametz” during Passover

We are commanded not to eat, see, or possess any “hametz” during Passover. Hametz, usually translated as “leaven,” is technically any one of the five biblical grain species – wheat, barley, rye, spelt, or oats – that has been in contact with water for more than 18 minutes. That’s why matzah is OK during Passover, but bread isn’t. Alas, beer and whiskey, with rare exceptions, are made from these grains, so they are not kosher for Passover. So that we don’t have hametz in our possession, we put any hametz we want to put away for Passover in a separate space, and we sell it to a non-Jew for the duration of the holiday.

To sell your hametz fill out the form below. You can scan the form or just send the information requested in the form to ashley@h-nt.org no later than 9:15 AM on March 25th.

Fast of the Firstborn

Since the firstborn of the Egyptians died so that our ancestors could get free from Egypt, there is a custom that Jewish first-born children fast as a sign gratitude that we weren’t killed. The fast of the firstborn is marked starting at sunrise on the day of the seder and continues until sundown. However, if you’re a firstborn you can be exempted from the requirement to fast by attending a seudat mitzvah, a “mitzvah meal.” We will hold a siyyum, the completion of a tractate of learning, on that morning (Thursday, March 25th) following our streamed morning minyan. Join us for a last pre-Passover bagel and l’hayim before Passover whether you’re fasting or not.

Authorization to Sell Hametz

Instructions: you may fill out this form and scan it or take a picture of it and email it back to Ashley Rowland (ashley@h-nt.org) or just send the requested information in an email to Ashley.

I, _____, hereby authorize Rabbi Jacob Herber to act as my agent to sell in my name and on my behalf, all hametz owned and possessed by me (knowingly or unknowingly), wherever it may be (at home, place of business, or elsewhere) in accordance with the requirements and provisions of Jewish law.

Address (Home) _____

The Torah prohibits the ownership of leaven during Passover; therefore requiring the most preparation of any holiday. The Rabbinic Assembly Passover Guide is intended to help families maintain a Pesahdik home according to the principles of Conservative Judaism and its understanding of Jewish Law. With significant changes in the nature and manufacture of kitchen products and foodstuffs, new policies are required to maintain a Kosher-for-Passover kitchen. The full guide is available at: <https://www.rabbinicalassembly.org/story/pesah-guide-5781-0>

I enclose $ _____ for the Maot Hittim (checks may be made out to Herzl-Ner Tamid). Please mail this form to the synagogue office so it arrives no later than Thursday, March 25th.

A Dvar

“Rav Assi said: Tzedakah is as important as all of the other commandments.”

—BAVA BATRA

DR. ELIYAHU KRIGEL

Providing Tzedakah to those in need is our way of giving back. The Talmud in the quote above highlights Tzedakah as being just as important as all the other mitzvot or sacred obligations. Tzedakah literally means justice or righteousness. This year at FRS we sent Tzedakah boxes home to all our students so they could continue collecting Tzedakah all year long. Tzedakah comes up frequently in the Torah as an important reminder of his holy responsibility. Our synagogue wide fundraising effort this year is more important than ever. During the 2021 Annual Legacy Fundraiser on March 14 at 5:00pm we are honoring frontline workers. Meeting the Moment: Honoring Frontline Workers Among Us is an exceptional opportunity for all of us to come together and show our support.

We are paying tribute to the brave individuals who consistently give of themselves to ensure a safe and healthy legacy will follow. Join me FRS parents and synagogue members to show our appreciation and support for frontline workers in our community at the Legacy Fundraiser. Let's all show up together at home. During this tumultuous and unsettling time of Covid-19, we have found ways to come together and rise above the challenge of the moment. Thank you for your support and participation in the Annual Legacy Fundraiser this year.

Pesach is around the corner, and so are our last college packages of the school year! If you have an undergraduate college student with a new address this spring or if you've never submitted their information, submit their address so they can receive some Kosher for Pesach goodies! Please note that we cannot send packages internationally.

We need volunteers to help assemble packages at home! Visit h-nt.org/volunteers to sign up.
